The Glow Worm Grotto North Island, New Zealand

(By A. J. ALLEN)

I have been asked more than once to write something about New Zealand and of its nature's wonders, so I will try to describe some of them in and around Rotorua district. First, I will say that New Zealand proper is a remnant of a great continent, which reached to South America and is about 1200 miles east of Australia. New Zealand has two islands, North and South. South Island is the nearest body of land to the south pole. That is why Adm. Byrd started on his first expedition from this point in 1928. Going back to the north island, Rotorua, New Zealand's native race, the Maori, is famed for its culture. There are about 70,000 including half castes. Rotorua has quaint Maori villages, where native customs are conserved. They are very intelligent and the Maori is no longer a dwindling race. Every census during the last thirty years has shown an increase. They are fine farmers and build fine homes. The front of their homes are beautifully carved all by hand as delicate as a Chinese ivory fan and every inch is the beautiful Maori red, which is made by the Maoris from red clay and oil. They live in the middle of the thermal region. Here will be found every imaginable variety of thermal action. Great geysers leap and play continuously; boiling pools and springs send clouds of steam skyward, while boiling mudpools add to the weirdness of the scene. I have visited our own Yellowstone Park on several occasions, have camped weeks in the park and I have talked to others who have seen both parks and all have had to admit that the New Zealand geysers are greater and more numerous than in Yellowstone.

We will now take a trip to the Waitomo Caves—the only caves known of their kind in the world, although there are two other caves in this district, similar in character to all limestone caves. This glow worm cave is so different. Entrance to this cave is through a low opening cut out of the hillside; a narrow winding path leads downward for some hundred and fifty yards, passing queer limestone formations, a very thin wide stalactite gives the appearance of a huge rasher of bacon, then another part is like a frozen waterfall. The path continues down a gentle slope until it reaches an archway through which the visitor obtains a startling vista of a lofty chamber, called the "banquet hall," because a great dinner fete was actually held here. On the far side of the hall is a natural balcony from which the visitor receives his first glimpse of the wonderful glow worm cave. At first the effect is like stars in the heavens, but as the eyes become accustomed to the darkness, they distinguish millions of electrical blue colored lights coming from the glow worms. Only a portion of the ceiling of the grotto can be seen from this balcony, yet even the sight of this small section is so beautiful that it holds the spectator spellbound. We now go down to the underground river. A flight of stairs which has been cut out of rock leads us into the grotto that brings you down to a platform at which a boat capable of holding twenty persons lies moored. An underground river covers the whole floor of the glow worm grotto and here comes the thrill which the world may have only at the Waitomo Glow Worm Grotto. The guide noiselessly pulls the boat around the cave by means of a steel wire fastened to the walls of the grotto. The electric light is turned off and the boat sails away down the Black river in the pitch dark and only the lap of water against the boat and against the banks can be heard. The crowd was talking to each other as it was willfully uncanny. Then the guide reminded us to be silent and in a few minutes the light from the edge of the water on both sides of the cave commenced to light, bit by bit, higher and higher until the two sides met together on the ceiling of the cave, as if by magic, and by and by the whole grotto was aflame with light and here before our eyes were hundreds of thousands of millions of glow worms which opened their little wings and sent out their lights. If you could gather together all the blue white African and Brazilian diamonds that now exist in the whole world and if it were possible to set them in this grotto and put a flaming light behind them, this is the nearest explanation I can give of the grandeur of this cave. In other parts of this cave are thousands of little lights on the uneven formations of the grotto; these are as bright as the stars on a clear night on the Mohave desert, yet, even this comparison does not do the glow worm justice, for they are much more colorful than stars and their nearness to the boat enables one to see their beauty more clearly and the vision above is reflected in the inky black water below. The guide does not need to remind the party to be silent here, for the sheer beauty of the scene makes everyone desire nothing more than to gaze.

Another great sight in the cave is to see how these little creatures eat. They let down millions of threads, thinner than the finest of silk and fastened around these threads are six to twelve miniature pearls and the pearls are very sticky and any insect or any small fly sticks to the pearl and the glow worm draws them up and in this way feed themselves.

On our return trip we all commenced to chat and out went the little lights from the glow worms. They do not like noise so they close their little wings. Then the guide throws on the torch light and looking back on the roof of the grotto glistening in the light of the guide's torch, you will see millions of these silky strings hanging down with glistening pinhead pearls, fastened around the silky strings. These serve as a lure to overcurious moths and other tiny insects. Anyone who expects to go to New Zealand should not miss the two greatest sights on the north island—The Thermal district and the Waitomo Glow Worm caves. They are situated about halfway between Auckland and Wellington on the New Zealand Government railroad.

Will Circulate Petition Against Rent to Aliens

The Ocean Beach chamber of commerce met in regular monthly session last Monday evening. The evening was set aside for discussion of the rental of houses here in Ocean Beach to Japanese, the problem being one that confronts this section during the height of the summer vacation season. Some five years ago a strenuous move was made to stop Japanese vacationists from inland valleys from coming here and there was no particular trouble for a few years. In 1933 a few families came and in 1934 it is reported there were about 100 families here.

All who attended this meeting, or at least everyone of about thirty present who spoke, were in favor of excluding these people from our community, however, those who have rented to the Japanese, their own property, and that of others, were not out and it is difficult to know just what their reaction might be.

Edgar Hastings, supervisor of the First District, during 1920 and in previous years when it has been necessary to take action against Japanese, was president of the anti-Japanese committee of the Native Sons of California. Mr. Hastings was present at the meeting and gave his views on the subject. Several others gave their ideas of the detriment it was to the beach section to have colored people or Japanese monopolize any section of the beach and that steps should be taken at this time to prevent rental of houses here to aliens during the coming summer, when it was believed every available property would be necessary to care for American vacationists.

A motion was made and passed that this organization endorse the move to circulate a petition asking property owners to refuse to rent their houses or property to Japanese and also to refrain from patronizing anyone doing so. The resolutions committee will circulate petitions in Ocean Beach to read as follows:

We, the undersigned citizens of Ocean Beach, are opposed to the renting of houses to Japanese and pledge ourselves not to rent to them or patronize anyone doing so.

Following the Japanese subject the matter of school facilities were taken into consideration and the secretary was instructed to write the school board extending to them the thanks of the chamber of commerce for the splendid building just being completed for the elementary school.

Supervisor Hastings and Albert Dumont then urged this organization to make plans and push them for the setting aside of a section of Collier park for a junior high school. The speakers stated the Point Loma high school was now overcrowded and there was no room for enlargement of desired training or adequate facilities for those students now attending this institution.

The secretary was ordered to write all local civic bodies asking their support in preparation of plans for the desired junior high school and that a joint meeting be held in the early part of December to further this project.

CATHOLIC CHURCH MEN TO SERVE NEW ENGLAND DINNER

The men of the Sacred Heart church will serve a boiled New England dinner at the woman's clubhouse from 5 to 8, Saturday, November 24. An enthusiastic committee are preparing for the event and want it to be known that the only part the ladies are to have in it, is to eat the good things provided. It will be a real man's dinner served to men, women and children. Hosts will be Messrs. Thos. Kyle, Pat Kennedy, Ed Latour, George Friel, Charles Clark, James O'Conner, W. C. Madigan, John McCaffery, George Turskey and Emmett Whalen.

Oodles and oodles of Thanksgiving and Christmas Cards now on display at Claspill's, Ocean Beach.

DICK BARBOUR TELLS OF SCHOOL COSTS

President Myron Insko of Ocean Beach Kiwanis was chairman of the day at Wednesday luncheon.

Dick Barbour, principal of Ocean Beach elementary school, told of school costs, the decrease in same and the favorable showing San Diego schools had made in comparison with others of the state.

The speaker said that total expenditures had decreased 25 percent, between 1931-32 and 1933-34, this amount being $789,598. Actual expenditure for the 1933-34 period was $26,535 below the budget allowance.

Budget estimates for the present year show an increase of $178,345 over last year's actual expenditures. This increase is primarily due to the necessity of lightening the teacher's load and the allowance for an expected increase of 350 students, also a reserve allowance for adult educational activities and special allowances for expenses involved in connection with increased earthquake resistance of school buildings. An increase of $64,565 over last year is due to the first retirement payment on bonds of the 1927 election.

Local costs for 1933-34 average daily attendance are $73 for the elementary schools and $113 for the high schools. In 1932-33 some elementary schools ran as high as $129, and for high schools $180; that year high schools here cost $130. For cost of operation San Diego schools have run about 4th from low during the past five years, 20 school systems in the count.

As the school funds receive $60 for elementary pupils and $90 for high school students from the State treasury, the balance has to be made up from the general tax receipts of the counties in which the schools are located.

The share of school support resting upon local tax sources shows a decrease during the period from 81 percent in 1930-31 to 34 percent for the past year.

In the Ocean Beach school the average is 41 pupils per teacher which, it is hoped, will be somewhat reduced after the Christmas vacation by the addition of another teacher and the occupancy of the new school unit.

Mr. Gethin D. Williams, manager of the La Valencia hotel at La Jolla was a visiting Kiwanian.

Mr. and Mrs. Sew and Sow Special Dance Attraction OF OCEAN BEACH Mission Beach Saturday Nite

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Ahern own a lovely fenced-in garden around their home at 2177 Ebers street. Chrysanthemums, sweet peas, and many kinds of flowers in artistic baskets arranged by Mrs. Ahern attract passers-by. "I do not have to advertise," said Mr. Ahern with pride, "for my lot is a whole flower show in itself." He has, however, taken prizes at various exhibitions, and was at one time a gardener at the Naval Base. He loves his garden—also his wife, a sweet, quiet woman who is eager to please. They work together. In the sowing and growing of sweet things there is reaped a harvest of happiness.

Mrs. Myra F. Smith believes that travel is a great education. From many lands both she and her parents have brought objects of art and beauty. Antiques, statuettes, brasses, jewels and many other pretty things ornament her home at 4517 Santa Monica Avenue. "A grab bag disgorges surprising knick-knacks, and in a crystal bowl Mrs. Smith foretells your future in her clever way. Good luck might be yours, and a visit to Mrs. Smith's home might also be timely if you have in mind gifts for Christmas or prizes for the bridge table.

J. J. Fitzpatrick is rejuvenating his home within and without. He and Mrs. Fitzpatrick are once again residents of Ocean Beach in their attractive home at 4406 Santa Monica avenue.

Mr. John Carr, 4428 Narragansett avenue, sows vegetable seeds all the year round, which grow into bumper crops. He gives his garden all his care and attention. It is to him now his life work.

CORDS TO BUILD $15,000 HOME AT LOMA PORTAL

William Cords the first of the week took out building permit for a $15,000 frame-stucco residence and garage at 3110 Browning street. The Cords family have been living for some months in the Five Points section but like their old location at Loma Portal better so will be back there as soon as their new home can be completed.

WED AT BAPTIST CHURCH LAST SATURDAY EVENING

Miss Marguerite Florence Bryant became the bride of Ardath B. Warner, Saturday evening, November 17, at a candlelight ceremony in the First Baptist church at Ocean Beach. The pastor, Rev. W. S. Dunn, uncle of the bride, officiated. Only a few friends and relatives were present for the ceremony.

A reception was held in the church parlor after the services, following which the couple left for Lake Arrowhead.

Both newlows are graduates of San Diego high school. They will make their home in Oceanside.

Following his policy of obtaining for the Mission Beach Ballroom the best and most popular dance bands available on the Pacific coast, H. L. Northern, resident manager has engaged Bill Fleck and his musicians for this Saturday night.

The Bill Fleck group are well known on the coast, having played engagements at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel in Los Angeles and the Pasadena Civic auditorium. They recently completed a 54 week contract with the Columbia Don Lee network.

Bringing a number of new dance arrangements of his own, along with the reputation of a snappy ensemble, Bill Fleck is expected to draw a large crowd to the Mission Beach ballroom this Saturday night.

SINGLE PERSONS ENTITLED HOUSEHOLDERS EXEMPTION

A number of householder's who are entitled to householder's exemption under the new ruling of the Attorney General, have not yet made application for it, but should do so as soon as possible in order to facilitate correcting their tax bills.

Under the Government definition of householder, used in 1934, a single person without dependents was not given exemption. However, the Attorney General has now rendered an opinion permitting exemption to single persons who actually maintain a household, even though they have no dependents.

The exemption is for $100 and the saving in tax this year, is $6.03. There is no charge for correcting such assessments.

MANUFACTURERS START DRIVE TO PREVENT "COERCION" BY THE LABOR UNIONS.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

UNDER the auspices of the National Association of Manufacturers, a drive has been started "to prevent labor union coercion," and all state legislatures, when they convene, are to be asked to enact six specific provisions "for the purpose of fixing the legal responsibility of labor organizations for their acts." The association says it is moved to this course because it believes the federal government is at last aware of the "terrorism" practiced by union members against other employees who desire to act.

The laws to be asked of legislatures are:

1. To make sympathetic strikes and sympathetic lockouts illegal.
2. To make both employers and unions equally responsible for the observance of contracts.
3. To make it illegal for any association of employers or employees to expel, suspend, fine or otherwise punish members refusing to participate in an illegal strike or lockout.
4. To make picketing illegal when it is carried on in such a manner as to intimidate or coerce employees or customers.
5. To declare illegal employment contracts requiring a person either to join or not to join any labor organization.
6. To require written consent of the employee before the deduction of any part of his wages for the payment of organization dues may be made.

FRANCIS J. GORMAN, head of the United Textile Workers' committee that directed the recent strike, in a letter to George A. Sloan, head of the Cotton Textile Institute, said that union labor would be glad to co-operate with the industry in developing new markets for the output of the factories.

He declared that after controversies had been ironed out by the federal board named as a result of the strike, representatives of the two sides could "begin conferences looking toward the improvement of the industry."

Mentioning the increased competition from Japanese goods and other factors which caused demand for American textiles to fall "millions of yards" below production capacity, he said:

"A part of the purpose of the conferences which I have in mind would be to create joint employer-union machinery for the expansion and extension of the textile market. Such a program would be in furtherance of the interests of workers and employers alike."

"The union has a definite contribution to make in the development of marketing possibilities and the extension of consuming power. But, of course, the union cannot contribute its effort except in co-operation with the organized employers."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT agreed to extend the automobile industry code until February 1 without changing its wage or hours provisions. The American Federation of Labor had demanded an immediate and drastic revision of the code, and this the President refused. Mr. Roosevelt, however, said he believes the code needs revamping, and he hinted that on February 1 he may demand that the industry stabilize employment and pay rolls.

"I have no hesitation in telling you," the President wrote in a letter to William Green, president of the A. F. of L., and Alvan Macauley, secretary of the Automobile Manufacturers' association, "that there are a number of matters connected with this code with which I have never been fully satisfied."

He disclosed both in his letter and a separate formal statement that he is launching an investigation into working conditions and wages in the industry, with especial attention to the workers' annual earnings.

On behalf of the federation, F. J. Dillon, general organizer, registered a protest against the President's ruling, but pledged support for his promised investigation.

HENRY FORD, who says that what is done in Washington doesn't matter much so far as recovery is concerned, came out with a statement that should be encouraging to the American business man. He told the Ford managers gathered in Detroit that his company was out of the depression, and they in turn told him of generally improved business conditions in all parts of the country.

"The depression," Ford set forth in a statement, "would be over for the whole country very soon if American industrialists would just forget the alphabet schemes and take hold of their industries and run them with good, sound American business sense."

"They should take hold of their country, too, in the same way, and run it with good sound American common sense."

FOLLOWING a week's conference with agricultural economists from 40 states, officials of the Department of Agriculture and leaders of the AAA, the bureau of agricultural economics has issued a bulky report forecasting generally improved conditions for the farm industry during the coming year. Here are the chief points in the predictions:

1. Greatly reduced supplies of most farm products will be seen, which, with improvement in consumer purchasing power, will probably bring a higher level of farm income during the first half of 1935, this despite low foreign demand for American farm products.
2. Farm production will be larger than this year's unusually small production.
3. This year's higher prices may tend to stimulate excessive planting of some crops not under production control next year.
4. Continued improvement in demand late next year will depend primarily on recovery in the durable goods industries.
5. "A small improvement in the purchasing power of farm families may, in general, be expected."
6. Prices of goods used in farm production are expected to average somewhat higher, at least until June, 1935.
7. The farm credit situation "will continue to show gradual improvement above the bad conditions of the past several years."
8. Next year's wheat crop is expected to result in an export surplus, with prices hanging close to an export basis.
9. Substantial advance in prices of meat animals is expected, with no material expansion in live stock numbers sighted before 1936.
10. Next year's wool clip will be the smallest in several years, with prices dependent on world production.
11. "A generally favorable" outlook is seen for poultry raisers, with prices remaining at seasonably high levels until next summer.
12. An unfavorable outlook is sighted for dairymen because of the shortage of hay and grain.

The bureau predicted some further improvement in the total cash income of farm families available for living expenses, although less than that from 1933 to 1934.

CONVERSATIONS in London preparatory to the scheduled naval conference have been quite unsatisfactory so far, for neither the United States nor Great Britain shows any disposition to accord to Japan the equality that nation demands, even though it be merely in principle with the Japanese agreeing not to build up to parity with them. Well-posted observers do not believe the conference will accomplish anything valuable, and Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson says that, regardless of its outcome, his department plans to bring the American fleet up to full treaty strength and will ask congress for the necessary appropriations.

DR. ERNEST GRUENING, chief of the bureau of territories and insular affairs, has gone rather hurriedly to the Virgin Islands to make a personal investigation into a state of affairs that has led to the filing of serious charges before committees of both houses of congress. In a petition for a congressional inquiry, Paul C. Yates, who recently resigned as executive assistant to Gov. Paul M. Pearson, charges that the present administration of the islands is "wasteful, extravagant, inefficient, and tainted with corruption."

Yates was recently suspended and ordered to Washington for an inquiry by Secretary Ickes, who accused him of "disloyalty, insubordination, and gross inefficiency," and in general of being a trouble maker. Yates resigned immediately and came to Washington, but chose to ignore Secretary Ickes' office, carrying his complaints directly to congress.

He charges that Mr. Ickes has been "outrageously deceived" by Governor Pearson and subordinate officials of the interior department, has ignored "complaints, petitions, and specific charges" presented by the citizens of the islands, and has dealt with officials "in a peculiarly harsh, cruel, and dictatorial manner."

The petition further charges that minor officials in the interior department aided and abetted Governor Pearson to "whitewash a major public works scandal and deceived the secretary of the interior regarding public works and the general situation, and were criminally negligent in the performance of their duty."

SIR CHARLES KINGSFORD-SMITH, the famous Australian aviator, and Capt. P. G. Taylor, his navigator, landed their monoplane, Lady Southern Cross, at Oakland, Calif., thus completing a notable flight from Brisbane, Australia. They stopped on the way at Suva in the Fiji Islands and at Honolulu.

FRANCE is having a lot of trouble with Syria, for which country she holds a mandate from the League of Nations, and the French high commissioner has suspended the Syrian parliament sine die and assumed virtual dictatorship. There have been serious disturbances there, due to both economic complications and the nationalistic aspirations of the native population.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI's corporative system of government for Italy has just gone into effect, and the duce has taken on 22 more important state jobs, namely, the presidency of that number of corporations into which Italy's spheres of working activity have been grouped. To assure proper co-ordination each corporation will be headed for an indefinite period by the minister of corporations, who is Mussolini himself. The corporations' portfolio is one of seven cabinet posts he holds personally.

The actual management of the corporation is to be left to vice presidents, who will be appointed by the premier from among three representatives of the Fascist party on each of the corporations' governing boards.

BECAUSE of her personal achievements and not because she is the wife of the President, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has been awarded the second Gimbel prize of $1,000 and a medal for outstanding work for America. She will receive the award in Philadelphia on December 12.

Mrs. Roosevelt has requested that the $1,000 be applied toward sending a child suffering from the effects of infantile paralysis to Warm Springs, Ga., for six months of muscular re-education.

SPEEDY ruling by the United States Supreme court on constitutionality of the NRA act and the code of fair competition for the lumber and timber products industry may be expected. Judge W. I. Grubb of the Federal District court at Birmingham, Ala., has ruled them unconstitutional and dismissed an indictment against an operator of several sawmills. The action was taken by agreement of both sides so as to expedite an appeal to the Supreme court.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT announced that, beginning July 1, 1935, he will eliminate the 5 per cent pay cut that is now taken out of the salaries of all federal employees. The pay restoration, he explained, is being planned on the assumption that increases in the cost of living will necessitate it.

The Treasury department thereupon admitted frankly that this means the taxpayers will be called on to pay an additional fifty million dollars a year for the benefit of the 700,000 federal employees who will benefit by the restoration in salaries.

Mr. Roosevelt predicted flatly that the cost of living will advance substantially within the next eight months. When he made this statement at his regular press conference he also cautioned reporters to remember that an increase in the cost of living meant an increase in commodity and property values, thereby lessening the difficulty of paying debts. This is one of the avowed aims of the Roosevelt program.

He said he expected the rise of food, clothing, fuel, housing, and other living costs to be large enough by next July 1 to justify the 5 per cent restoration. He refused to say whether the increase in government pay, which is being allowed for in the 1935 federal budget, is to be taken as an example for industry to follow.

MEXICAN governments, both federal and state, are carrying on a determined campaign against the Roman Catholic church, charging that the latter has been fostering a revolutionary movement. On the other hand, a vigorous denial that the Catholic church had advocated armed resistance to the Mexican government or intervention by the United States in the religious conflict in Mexico was issued by Archbishop Ruiz, the apostolic delegate to Mexico, in San Antonio, Texas.

Bishops and priests are being expelled from various states, and the state of Mexico issued an order limiting the number of churches in the region in which services may be held to 34, the same as the number of priests permitted to officiate in the state. All churches above this number, the decree provided, will be used as schools and public libraries. The action was believed to have been taken to prevent priests ousted from other states from coming to the state of Mexico to officiate.

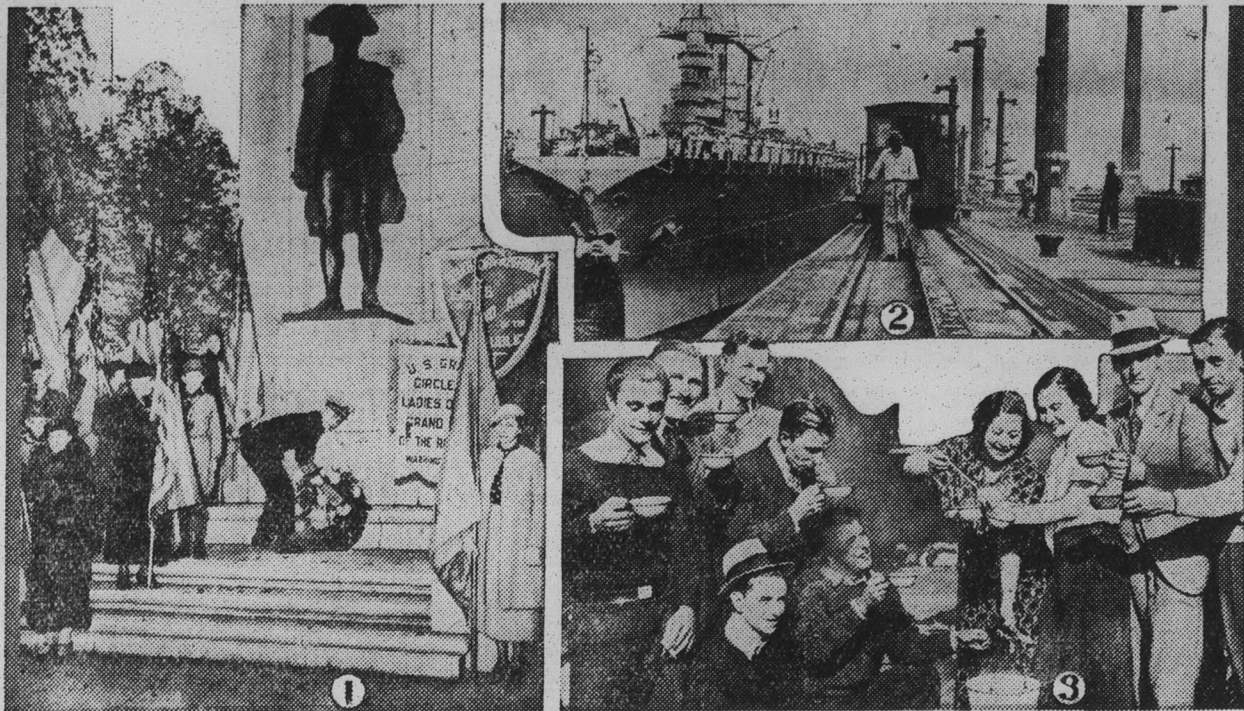

The Supreme court ruled that all buildings used for Catholic ceremonies shall become the property of the nation.

Acting President Rodriguez in a letter to Attorney General Portes Gil said the clergy, on pretext of opposing the initiation of compulsory socialistic education in Mexico's schools, has "initiated a frank campaign of sedition which reveals clearly its intention to bring about a revolution."

CHANCELLOR HITLER has realized the danger to his regime in the revolt of the Evangelical Protestant pastors against the tyrannical rule of Reichsbishop Mueller, and has decided to separate church and state. The government of the reich, he said, would not interfere in the quarrel. Some observers in Berlin expressed the fear that this policy would lead to unrestrained growth of German paganism and also to further acts against the Jews, under the leadership of Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, philosopher, and Julius Streicher, publisher of the Stormer, heads respectively of the pagan faith and the anti-Semitic movements.

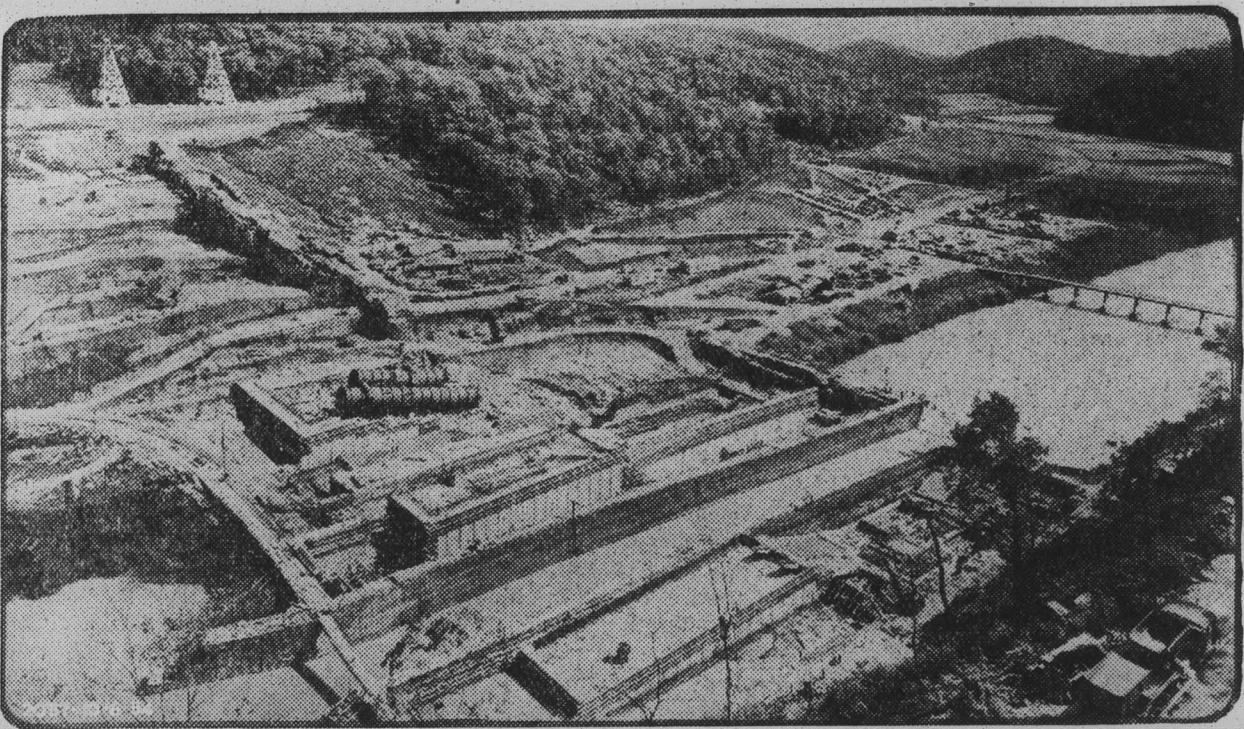

Acceptance of Chancellor Hitler's new constitution for the German Labor Front, which gives the Labor Front money and property which once belonged to trade unions and employers' associations, was celebrated in 16,000 demonstrations throughout Germany. The biggest was in Lustgarten, Berlin, where over 350,000 were assembled. The Labor Front includes all laborers and office workers.

Norris Dam Is One-Third Completed

The Tennessee Valley authority's $39,000,000 power and flood control dam on the Clinch river, near Knoxville, is now one-third finished. Over 10 per cent of the concrete for the dam has been poured. When finished two and one-half years from now, it will stand 253 feet high, eliminating all future floods on the Clinch and reducing materially the flood stages on the Tennessee river itself.

OLD SPORT REVIVED

Use of the Hul-Che, ancient and deadly weapon of the Mayans many centuries ago, is to be developed into a modern sport. The Hul-Che has been introduced by Robert Stacy-Judd, famous archeologist, who says that it was employed by the Mayans for hurling arrows great distances. Mr. Stacy-Judd is arranging a tournament at Los Angeles, and his wife is here shown demonstrating the use of the Hul-Che.

Repair of the house of parliament in London, which was started in 1923, will not be completed until 1941, according to the latest estimate.

"Golden Tales in Flowers"

Theme for the 1935 Tournament of Roses is disclosed amid pageantry at Pasadena. "Golden Tales in Flowers" around which the celebrated New Year day floral parade will be built is announced by the opening of a huge floral book during the picturesque ceremony. Heralded by pretty pages, the open leaves of the book framed a story teller who announced the famous tales and legends which will be depicted in gorgeous blossoms on January 1.

Wraps of White Velvet in New Lines

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A GAIN velvet as medium for the formal wrap reigns supreme. The latest gesture in high fashion circles is white velvet for evening coats, for handsome tunics to top dark skirts and for the new basque and jacket blouses. Designers are doing wonderful things with the new white velvet such as a knee-length tunic made of white transparent velvet with gold cord and tassel at the neckline and about the waist.

There is also a lovely crinkled washable white velvet being shown this season which is eminently practical seeing that it tubs to perfection. For blouses and tunics this white washable velvet will be found ideal.

An intensely interesting note about the new formal evening wraps which are fashioned of white velvet, is their silhouettes which depart radically from the conventional lines we have been accustomed to see.

For inspiration in creating the newer wraps, designers are turning to such humble sources as butcher-boy smocks and other similar garments of loose-flowing lines. The butcher-boy jacket which belted across the front, flaring loose at the back, is wonderfully youthful and chic made up in white velvet. A collar of white ermine with muffs and wee hat to match makes such an ensemble infinitely attractive.

Then, too, in this movement toward the silhouette which is different style creators have even turned their attention to choir-boy garb as a contributing influence to the new wrap fashions. The evening coat to the right in the picture reflects somewhat this source of inspiration, although it also partakes of the quaint dolman fashion, in that its sleeves are loose and large at the armhole. Self-velvet cording borders the full cape-like sleeves as well as the round neckline and down the front opening. This very lovely garment is fastened at the throat by a single, big jeweled button.

Beautiful, simple and new lines distinguish the evening coat to the left in the group. The cowl back (the monk inspiration is a big force in the present-day styles) and full sleeves pointed at the elbow are details which interpret new fashion trends at their best for this superb wrap of ivory crystalline velvet. We would like to tell you more. If we had space, about the tendency of designers to seek suggestions from ecclesiastical vestments for their new fashions. This is especially noticeable in the simple draped effects adopted together with a wide use of big cords and tassels and hoodlike drapes at the neckline. This influence can be traced throughout dress and tunic and blouse design as well as in the fashioning of evening wraps.

A feature made much of in style doings for this fall and winter is the use of rich dark brown furs on white. The stunning knee-length coat of white velvet centered in the illustration has luxurious cuffs of brown fox—a lovely combination. Here again we see the simplicity of line which marks the smartest new evening wraps. The bow tie of self-velvet at the throat is in perfect keeping with the chaste naive lines of this exquisite garment.

GOLD NAILHEADS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

On many of the new fall dresses one sees cabochon or big-button effects as pictured here, which are formed of either gold or silver nailheads. This dark brown dress of chardonize yarn in popcorn weave offers several new style notes. It is trimmed with a lame collar in gold which matches the nailheads down the front of the blouse. The slash in the sleeves is especially important for slashed treatments abound in the new fashions. Covered buttons outline the shoulder and trim the tight cuffs to the elbow. The self-fabric girdle is wide and soft. Sash effects such as this often take the place of belts in the newer models.

Ankle-Length Skirts

Ankle-length skirts will be seen on many afternoon gowns in London's society circles this winter.

WILD WEST TOUCH TO TAILORED SUITS

From the wild and woolly West come some of the smartest costume inspirations of the season.

There is a Buffalo Bill flair to the tailored suits and hats which bedeck our up-and-coming shop windows this fall.

There is the wide-brimmed felt hat with a sombrero air which tops off the season's tailored tweeds.

One of the most successful examples of the wild West trend in hats appropriately is called the dude rancher, and there are others, such as rough rider and the sidesaddle beret.

Then there are the bandannas which smart co-eds are knotting about their aristocratic throats this season in the manner of the dashing cowboys.

They are effective in the classic red and blue printed cottons of the real cowboy's bandanna. And there are others, more pretentious, in soft necktie silk.

They add a dashing touch of color to the tailored woolen daytime frock or the sweater and skirt costume.

House Coats Are Smart to

Wear in One's Lazy Hours

For lazy hours of relaxation women are now wearing smart and extremely comfortable house coats. They are made of heavy white silk with broad revers as tailored as those of a man's dinner jacket and belted in place with a heavy silk cord. Pajamas or a heavy white slip may be worn with the coat.

Another lovely negligee is one made of a luscious angora crepe with a neckline and sleeves trimmed with bands of shaved marabou feathers which give the appearance of fur.

Green a Favorite

Green in a vivid medium tone makes day frocks and ensembles, evening gowns and wraps, as well as blouses more sober colored suits, while deeper shades called "forest" and "hunter" and blue green are also much favored.

LET US GIVE THANKS.

Some people, surveying the past twelve months, may feel they have little to be thankful for. Let them compare their estate with that of the early pilgrims, or with the conditions of other people in other lands.

As with the pilgrims there are now many people who are denied the privilege of worshipping God according to their own desires and beliefs, and who as well suffer many hardships and to whom life is a struggle from the cradle to the grave.

There is more to Thanksgiving day than a turkey, symbol of plenty, and a digestion-testing dinner. It should be a day of retrospection. Another year of adventure and experience has passed, and here we are! Surely we are richer in knowledge; surely we know ourselves and the world better; surely we have profited, even though at the expense of hard knocks. Rather than the material achievement, reckon up the spiritual.

The Pilgrims, that first Thanksgiving day, were poorer than they had been in England in goods of the world, but they proved they could make a living and have the priceless blessing of liberty to think about and could speak after their own will. Therefore their hearts were filled with thankfulness, as ours should well be.

"Let us give thanks" the Pilgrims said,
 Though theirs was a grievous way;
 "Let us give thanks to a hallowed name
 For a bountiful harvest day!"

Scant there blessings were, and few,
 A wearisome path they trod,
 But in their grateful hearts there grew
 Hosannas unto God.

Clean, truthful advertising pays big results.

The Century of Progress in Chicago closed with remarkable success. It was a big event, as all great expositions are. Now, the next major exhibit will be in California—San Diego next year. It takes a lot of human courage to start and carry out such a venture, but this will be easy for San Diego with such a backing as the Golden State. Our city is already throwing out a challenge, and it is expected that it will be the most magnificent, titanic and vast exhibit ever held on the Pacific coast. Unquestionably these displays of world products are being visited year after year not for amusement only, but for knowledge and education, while there is a vast course of entertainment and inspiration which always lingers in the mind.

Any community not accessible to a public library is most unfortunate. The depression has proven this more emphatically within the past few years, for it has turned people by the tens of thousands to the reading table. Some day, perhaps, we may look back and thank posterity for this the greatest economic tragedy ever known in history, for it has unconsciously enlightened a lot of us. Libraries are the very heart and soul of society. They draw us with the promise of a legacy which no one can take from us. The library is described as the conscious expression of man; correctly stated, thus: man looking forward, backward, upward and inward. It is complete for every literary need, for it is man dynamic.

The science of medicine is a power in the land to save humanity from the dread and onslaught of disease. While Osler is the dean of modern medicine, we will ever look back and hold the name of Hippocrates, the father of medicine, as the saint of the early centuries who brought to us the enlightenment of a cure for the ills that flesh is heir to. This distinguished leader was a Greek physician, noted for his skill in diagnosis and his accurate and vivid description of morbid symptoms. The entire world, especially those of his profession are familiar with the "Hippocratic Oath," an oath taken by young men of his day who were starting out in the practice of medicine. It forms the basis of medical ethics and governs the acts of the professional as a whole. Hippocrates lived in the fourth century before Christ.

"Sunkist" is a California slogan and it not only should apply to citrus fruits, but to every variety grown under the sun in our sunny climate. There is a year-around advantage in living in the Golden State, because here fruits are gathered every month of the year. This is not altogether a phenomena, it is Nature's great economic plan which belongs to our semi-tropical land. Nature never skimps in California. She lavishes her best and the people get the benefit, whether it be fruit, climate, scenery, health or happiness. There is nothing left out in the California plan of living. When things go wrong, it is more than likely to be the people themselves.

That old and true saying, "Virtue may be assailed, but never hurt, surprised by unjust force, but not enthrallled;" is a mighty good quotation to remember in this age of injustice and intolerance. Therefore it is wise to cultivate patience which is a virtue not to be despised. The world is full of people who too often engage in superficial language; they are unstable and irresolute and always enlarge on the things which should be suppressed. There is nothing quite so preposterous and full of folly as an unjust attack upon the innocent. An office-seeker may be vilified and lashed by some cruel tongue, but if his record is good he can endure and win in the end.

Ile de France Chef Suggests New Dish for American Menus

Cooked Fruits Add Distinction to Meals

FRENCH cooks and French cooking are justly famous whether afloat or ashore, and Gaston Magrin, Chef of the Ile de France, flag ship of the French Line, more than lives up to the culinary reputation of his home land. Further, as director of a cuisine that must appeal to the palates of thousands of American travelers as well as to European gourmets, Chef Magrin is unusually well fitted to discuss ways in which the American menu might be given added zest by borrowing from abroad.

One of Chef Magrin's specialties is the fruit compote. Essentially the compote is a dish of cooked fruits—but cooked fruits with a difference. Into the compote as it is served in France and on France afloat goes all of the French cooks' love of artistry—artistry not alone of flavor but of appearance. The double appeal—to the eye and to the appetite—accounts for much of the distinction which the compote adds to the meal.

In France the compote is an almost universal dish. A meal without it is hardly a proper meal at all. Aside from all the other qualities that recommend it, when served as a side dish with the main course its flavor provides a piquant contrast with the richer flavor of the meat and gives a keener edge to appetites. From every point of view, Chef Magrin believes, the compote deserves as prominent a place on the American menu as is given it in France.

Below are two recipes for compotes suggested by Chef Magrin:

Compote de Pommes

Peel and core whole apples. Place them in a bowl of cold water and some lemon juice to prevent discoloration. Place apples in a baking dish and fill cavities with orange marmalade. Add some butter and water until apples are one-fourth covered. Add a little grated lemon rind. Cover and cook until tender. Remove each apple carefully to individual serving dish. Add a moistened teaspoonful of arrowroot to the liquor for each of the Ile de France

Chef Magrin

half pint. Bring to boiling point and stir in tablespoonful of orange marmalade. Pour over apples. Serve warm.

Compote de Poires

Peel whole pears, leaving a short end of the stem. Place them in a bowl of cold water and some lemon juice to prevent discoloration. Place in a saucepan with enough claret to cover (If claret is not available water may be used.) Add about one and a half teaspoons of sugar for each pear and a little vanilla, and a grated lemon rind. Cook covered until the pears are easy to pierce with a fork. Remove from fire, drain, and place each pear on an individual serving dish. Boil liquid down very quickly and when it has thickened pour some over each pear. Serve cold.

Just as a sweet at the close of a meal aids digestion, so will a sweet act when eaten with the meat course.

Settling Disputes

IT IS a strange thing that men often resort to strife first and reason afterwards in their efforts to settle disputes. Misunderstandings, jealousy, envy, self-justification, and the like are corrected not through strife, but through reason and amicable agreement. Wars are not a means of securing such an agreement; but after the use of bayonet and gun has ceased, and reason begins to bring about peaceful relations, then disputes are settled.

The ages have furnished historical data which prove that material ambitions and possessions afford no sound basis for peace, in either national or personal relations. Matter, being limited in its nature, expresses the belief of limitation in its every manifestation. Instead of making one great, trust in matter weakens one who relies upon it; and what this reliance does to individuals it does to nations. One right thinking individual is more valuable to world peace than millions of wrong thinkers. Referring to this individual importance, Mary Baker Eddy has written in "Pulpit and Press" (p. 4): "You have simply to preserve a scientific, positive sense of unity with your divine source, and daily demonstrate this. Then you will find that one is as important a factor as duodecillions in being and doing right, and thus demonstrating divine Principle." A little farther on she quotes, "One on God's side is a majority."

As the spokes of a wagon wheel get nearer the hub, they get nearer to each other; so is it with men; as they get closer to God in thought, they get closer to one another. The divine plan is impartial and blesses all alike who obey its laws of action. Love does not grant special favors, nor restrict legitimate progress; neither does it provide for such regulations through the material agencies commonly known as implements of warfare. The words of our Master, who came to fulfill the law, not to destroy, are as significant today as when they were spoken to Peter after he had drawn his sword and cut off the ear of the servant of the high priest: "Put up again thy sword into his place: for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." Then, as if in holy benediction, he turned Peter's thought from matter to the infinite source of all good by asking, "Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of angels?"

During the last quarter of a century was witnessed the most vicious and widespread combat ever fought, and today there is a crying need for assurances of peace, and a universally acceptable basis for the settlement of disputes. Spurred on by what it calls national defense policies, the human race has become engaged in the provision of drastic material methods of self-preservation.

But that which counteracts "all evil" comes from the divine Mind, not from the cannon's mouth. When animality gives way to brotherly love, and trustworthiness takes the place of dependence upon brute strength, the desire to rule one's neighbor through force or cunning will cease. It is the nature of God's law to elevate, not suppress, the human race; to give life, and not to take it. His law holds universal jurisdiction over all points of equity, and His angels bestow all blessedness on those who obey His law. As one becomes better acquainted with the demands of divine Mind, one begins to settle personal disputes by first correcting one's own thought. Starting with God, the source of all intelligence and good, one may establish friendly relations with others, for there is but one common origin and basis of all harmonious action.

Intelligence has already established an impartial and wholly practical answer to all questions; and when the entire human family submits to God's government, there will be no cause for distrust, fear, or strife, and there will be no unsettled disputes among men. Then will the prophecy of Isaiah be fulfilled, namely: "The mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. . . . And they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."—The Christian Science Monitor.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The Golden Text is from Hebrews: "The word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discernor of the thoughts and intentions of the heart."

Among the Scriptural selections in the Lesson-Sermon are these verses from Matthew: "And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people. . . . And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease."

A correlative passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, says, "Christ, Truth, was demonstrated through Jesus to prove the power of Spirit over the flesh,—to show that Truth is made manifest by its effects upon the human mind and body, healing sickness and destroying sin."

MODERNIZATION LOANS AVERAGE $392 EACH

Modernization loans made by Bank of America in cooperation with the National Housing program total $1,229,714, according to L. M. Gianini, senior vice president.

The loans will be used to repair and modernize 3,135 California homes, business properties and farm buildings with an average individual expenditure of $392, the bank executive said.

A survey of the first 1,849 loans made by Bank of America for modernization shows that skilled artisans are the principal borrowers, with 273 loans, while public employees come second, with 258. Business men and clerical employees were equal claimants for third place, with 192 loans recorded for each classification.

The survey showed that inside painting and redecorating work had the greatest appeal for the borrowers, 643 indicating the intention of having this class of work performed. The 1,849 borrowers included 599 who propose to paint the exteriors of their houses, 533 who contemplate new roofs, 437 who desire exterior repairs and a like number who are planning additional rooms. Heating, plumbing, cementing and lighting were among the more numerous plans reported by the borrowers.

NOVEL FEATURES BEING BUILT INTO HOME HERE

A pergola whose cross beams carry water spouts within, for drainage of house and garage roofs, is a planned feature of a home being built by C. N. Tubbs at 4932 Long Branch, Ocean Beach, and occupied by himself and wife. Windows slide on hardwood tracks, carried within the wall itself. Awning frames and spears are of Mr. Tubbs' own design and other unique and practical features are his own ideas. Mr. Tubbs was formerly employed by the government at a designer, and spends his time pleasantly and profitably in applying his innovations in his own home construction. For many years he lived in Alpine in a house famed for its originality of design and surrounded by a garden showing long hours of labor and planning. "Such work is my life," says Mr. Tubbs. —S. D. PTA STUDY GROUP

Members of the Ocean Beach PTA who motored to Carlsbad Monday, November 19, to hear Dr. Gertrude N. Laws, study group leader, speak on adult psychology were Mrs. J. W. McCausland, unit president; Mrs. T. M. Welch, Mrs. Y. N. Adams and Mrs. Vivian Bowling.

Mrs. Don Horner and Mrs. McCausland also heard Dr. Laws again in district leadership class on Wednesday in San Diego. "What the kindergarten pupil should have learned from his parents at home before entering kindergarten," was outlined by Dr. Laws. "His progress in social contacts with his playmates, group work and ability to learn from teachers and text-books depend largely upon his pre-school training and we as parents help or hinder our child's schooling before he enters school."

Feed 'Em Pie and Keep 'Em At Home Says Attractive Hollywood Star

By Mabel Love

WITH fresh fruits of many kinds now in season, America's favorite dessert—the pie—is coming into its own. And Evelyn Venable, popular screen star, knows how to build a pie and a pie crust that will make a man forget his date for a poker game.

In Hollywood a sudden wave of domesticity has swept many stars and lesser luminaries into the kitchen; and Miss Venable says that pie-making is one of the first culinary arts they try to master. "Men like pie," she says, "because it sticks to their ribs. The sweet fillings, of course, provide quick energy, especially valuable to those who work at such break-neck speed that every ounce of strength must be conserved."

In making pastry never trust to luck. Measure all ingredients accurately, and endeavor to work with them cold—even ice cold if possible. It is a good plan to put even the sifted flour in an ice box an hour before working with it. Here are the directions for a delectable pie crust:

Never Fail Pie Crust

2 cups sifted bread flour
1 cup sifted pastry flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter (1/2 lb.)
1/2 cup lard (1/4 lb.)
5 to 7 teaspoons ice water

Mix both kinds of flour together; add the salt and baking powder and sift all together into your mixing bowl.

Add your shortening and blend with pastry blender, or with two knives, until the mixture looks like coarse meal. Never, never yield to the temptation to knead the dough, for you will have a tough pie crust just as certain as fate if you do. Have water handy and begin to add it with caution—again take warning—do not use one more spoonful than the recipe calls for. When the water is all in, and you may really only require the six spoonfuls of water, then gather the paste up in floured hands and press together.

Have your board slightly covered with a film of flour and begin to roll your crust. First press flat with the floured rolling pin. Roll from center with a light, springy touch, using only as much dough as you will require for the first crust.

Have an ungreased pan ready. When the pastry is evenly rolled

AMERICAN LEGION
NO. 433 and AUXILIARY

Last Thursday evening the post and auxiliary held the first of a series of monthly card parties for the purpose of getting better acquainted with the people of Ocean Beach and to acquaint them with the aims and ideals of the American Legion. The proceeds are to be used to help carry on this year's welfare work as the main object of the post is service to the community. There was a large attendance and everyone said they would look forward to next month's party to be held Thursday, December 20. Prizes were awarded, after which refreshments were served.

The executive committees of both the post and auxiliary will meet in the near future for the purpose of laying plans for next month's activities and the forming of a monthly bulletin to be mailed to all members of post and auxiliary. Watch for a copy in these columns, as they will be of interest to the public. Cut them out and post in a conspicuous place where you can refer to them.

The next regular meetings of auxiliary and post will be held Wednesday December 5 and Thursday December 6 respectively. Bear them in mind Legionnaires.

Tonight in the corridors of Point Loma high the Girls' League is sponsoring a benefit dance for the Lomans and their friends. The proceeds of this corridor dance will go to purchase a trophy case, now sadly needed to display the evidence of Loman prowess in sport. All tickets will be sold before the evening of the dance. With Mary Shreve, Mary Kearns, Carolyn Curtis, and Betty Curtis heading the arrangements, with Ella Cook in charge of decoration, with Mr. and Mrs. Swenson, Mr. and Mrs. Williams, Miss Collier, Mr. and Mrs. John Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Banks, Mr. and Mrs. Tate and Mr. and Mrs. Farrar as guests, with Harlan Boucher's orchestra to furnish the music, the corridor dance of the Girls' League promises to be a delightful affair with a keynote of real sport.

The science assembly of last week, Thursday and Friday, November 15 and 16, as an example of the class work in chemistry with Mr. Austin and in biology with Mr. Farrar was interesting and instructive. Mr. Shepherd had as usual contrived a lively stage set up, and Trevor Woodward, Gaylord Parkinson, Robert Rock, Dave De Varona and Geo. Marikawa staged a series of chemical experiments with running comment by Lily Bell Counts upon the stroboscope, luminal producing heatless or cold light, ether, dry ice, hydrogen, and the production of a vacuum with bells ringing and sewer pipes singing. When the curtain rang the close to their experiments, Harold Keswick and Bob Perlman as commentator and operator, gave us on the screen with the microprojector a few slides of a bee's leg, a baby spider, a school of amoeba, cypris, and paramcium. Altogether, the assembly was the kind you want more of.

The recent newcomers to Point Loma high are Phillip Hardie from Honolulu; James Loh from Nestor, California; Lucy and Amelia Fry from Usalia, California; Allen Singleton from Chula Vista; Edmond Luch from Grossmont; and Robert M. York from Old Orchard Beach, Maine.

Approximately three hundred parents attended open house on Tuesday night of November 13 from 7:30 to 10:00. They met the teachers in their various rooms during the first hour and then repaired to the auditorium where the PTA had prepared a program under direction of the president Mrs. Frank Levin. The oath of allegiance, the introduction of the PTA board, selections by the Boy's glee and orchestra were followed by William C. Crawford, superintendent of schools, taking upon "The Responsibility of the Community."

One of the features of the regular school work that attracted very favorable attention was the art exhibit in room 205. Mrs. Johnson's completed project of "Life Before and Since the Industrial Revolution," and Miss Brodie's exhibit of "Studies after the Style of Diego Rivera" were unusual class results anywhere. The work in room 205 certainly disproves the art-as-a-frill theory.

And moreover, Christmas is coming; and the Christmas Show is well under way to point that fact. The public is cordially invited to be Christmas guests on the evenings of December 19 and 20 in the school auditorium at a delightful performance of Dicken's "Christmas Carol." The cast interpreting the story gives promise of an adequate performance:

Dave Chandler—Cheerly
George Meyer—Marley's ghost

Two students and an instructor suffered severe burns and a number of other students burned slightly Thursday when they were splattered with molten aluminum which exploded in the metal shop of Point Loma High school according to reports.

Molten Aluminum Spatters Students Thursday

The three seriously hurt were rushed to the county hospital in the police ambulance. They are: Charles Simpson, 16, of 1206 W. Spruce street, burns of eyes and neck; Kenneth Mixon, 16, of 4746 Cape May street, Ocean Beach, eyes burned, and A. B. Crawford, metal shop instructor, eyes and hands burned.

Crawford was pouring a quantity of molten aluminum into a metal mold, and suddenly the aluminum exploded shooting up and splattering a group of students clustered around the instructor.

According to a report from Mr. Swenson, principal of Point Loma high school, Mr. Crawford was the only one burned on one eye. Burns were received near but not on the eyes of the other boys though not serious.

A number of students received slight burns on their clothes and bodies. Ruth V. Hall, school nurse, immediately took charge of the situation and telephoned for a police ambulance.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

For the forum-lecture to be held at the Theosophical headquarters, Point Loma, Sunday, Nov. 25, at 3 p. m., the subject: "In my Father's House are Many Mansions" will be discussed by La Fayette Plummer, instructor in the symbology of mathematics at Theosophical university. He will be assisted in answering by Lydia Ross, M. D., a member of the headquarters' staff. The speaker was born at Point Loma, and was educated in the Raja-Yoga (now Lomaland) school, and for some years has been active as a teacher in the boys' department. Mr. Ross became a member of the Theosophical society in 1898, and is a deep student of, and writer on, Theosophy.

Plummer says: "The mystical saying, 'In my Father's House are many Mansions,' reflects some of the most beautiful teachings of the ancient Wisdom, for in these few words are contained the key to the inner structure of the Universe and of man. 'The Kingdom of Heaven is within you,' said Jesus. Thus the 'Father' is within also. He is the inner god, and you are the house he lives in."

ASK THE MOTHER who has made this change

The average mother gives any laxative the family may be using, while family doctors give children a liquid laxative of suitable ingredients, suitable strength, and in suitable amount.

If you want to know just what a tremendous difference this means to any youngster, just inquire of any mother who has tried it!

She knows that a bilious boy or girl needs a gentle liquid laxative when constipated, and a little less if dose is repeated until bowels seem to be moving regularly and thoroughly without need of help.

Use a liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative). California Syrup of Figs has the right amount for children's use, and this rich, fruity syrup does not harm or upset a child's system.

Get a bottle of the real California Syrup of Figs at any druggist's. All children like its agreeable taste, and it agrees with them. No need to give a child anything stronger. This fruity syrup is laxative enough; indeed, many adults use it in preference to pills and tablets.

THE "LIQUID TEST." First: select a liquid laxative of the proper strength for children. Second: give the dose suited to the child's age. Third: reduce the dose, until the bowels are moving without any help.

An ideal laxative for this purpose is the pure California Syrup of Figs, but be sure the word "California" is on the bottle.

Your first thought may be, "I must eat more." That's not all. You should enjoy what you do eat. Frequently, the blood cells are low... and this, perhaps, is what makes you feel weak. Just try it and notice how your appetite and digestion improve. SYNOPSIS

Prudence Schuyler comes to Prosperity Farm, inherited from her uncle, to make a new life for herself and her brother, David. His health broken by tragedy. The second day on her farm Prue falls from the barn into the arms of Rodney Gerard, rich young man, a neighbor. There is at once a mutual attraction, but Prudence suspects men since her sister's husband ran away with her brother's wife. Len Calloway tries to buy Prue's timber, but she contracts with Rod to dispose of the trees. David comes to the farm. A clown appears, advertising a circus in a nearby town. Prue accompanies Rod and Jean to the show. Chicot, an old clown, is accidentally killed. He was the grandfather of Milly Gooch, one of the circus riders. Rod became friendly with Milly when she lived on Prosperity Farm. Calloway intimidates available laborers so that they cannot be hired to cut the timber for Rodney Gerard. Milly Gooch broke her engagement to Calloway. He believes Rod was the cause and has since been his enemy. After the accident to Chicot Rod calls on Milly to see if he can be of any help. Prue hardens herself still more against Rod when she sees in the newspaper a flashlight picture of him with Milly.

CHAPTER VII

With sighs of relaxation Gerard and Armstrong, in the tweeds in which they had come from a long day in the woods, settled into deep chairs before the fire in the library at High Ledges and lighted their pipes.

"I'll say I started something when I set out to thin my woods!" Gerard said. "I thought that all that was necessary was to chop down a few trees and there we were. Now it seems that I have embarked on a life work. Puffer was to report on the labor question this afternoon. There he is now! That's Si's voice when he is excited. It doesn't sound good to me. Come in, Si."

Puffer stood in the doorway. He chuckled.

"Howdy, Jim! Don't have to ask how you two are. Rod, Kinder beat out, ain't ye?"

Gerard pulled himself stiffly to his feet and drew an inviting chair nearer the fire. "All right, old-timer, shoot."

"No use beatin' 'bout the bush. I've been to every village within a hundred miles an' I can't get a man to work for ye, Rod. They're afraid of Calloway. I guess we're up against it, all right."

"We can't be up against it, Si. That timber must be cut. I'll find some huskies somewhere who haven't sold out body and soul to Len Calloway. Do we need skilled lumbermen, Jim?"

"No. Skilled labor would save time and money, but with you and Puffer and me to boss a crew we could get the wood out."

Patch, the butler, appeared at the door.

"Miss and Mr. Schuyler," Gerard doubted his ears. Prue here! He heard Jean's ecstatic, "Oh goody!" as he crossed the room to welcome the girl and her brother. His lips tightened at the hostility in her eyes as they met his. It was abundantly evident that she was still in disgrace for his passionate outburst of yesterday. With difficulty he kept his voice steady.

"This is a clear case of thought transference. How did you know that we need your advice and your brother's at this very moment, Prue? Come over by the fire, Dave."

Schuyler laughed. "How you all conspire to spoil me! We are not so neighborly as we seem. We were driven here for shelter."

Prudence smiled radiantly at Armstrong, and explained:

"Dave and I have been to the village to barter eggs and poultry for groceries. Just as we reached this drive, Success belled her name and passed out. I didn't dare let Dave sit in the cold car—it is beginning to snow—while I probed for internal disturbances; he flatly refused to leave me in the dark road—he had the escaped convict on his mind—so here we are. Now that he is warm and comfy, perhaps you will come out with me, Jim, and help diagnose the engine trouble."

Gerard spoke to the man who had been laying wood on the fire.

"Patch, tell Jenkins to look over Miss Schuyler's car. When he has it in shape, let me know."

He turned to Prudence. "Your arrival is uncannily opportune, partner. Jim, Si, and I have struck a snag."

"All is not serene on the logging front?" Prudence asked anxiously.

"Calloway again? I hope you haven't permanently incurred that man's enmity because you are helping us."

"That's only a little gas spilled on the fire, Dave. Len is drunk with the idea of his importance in this community."

chopped off his own head by a stupid move? Whatever the explanation, the fact remained that she was still relying upon the original plan for getting out her timber.

"Jim, suppose no one here will work for us? What shall we do?"

Gerard's recent satisfaction burned up in anger. She was deliberately ignoring him. He cut in:

"We'll have to hire men from outside the state. I'm going to New York tomorrow to try my luck there."

"New York?" David Schuyler repeated thoughtfully. "What sort of men do you need for the work in the woods, Rodney?"

"Husky lads. Jim will do the head work and Si and I will drive the crew," Gerard answered.

"We need men who can swing an ax and cut as we direct," Armstrong elaborated.

"You said you were going to New York to look for them. I have been thinking—"

"If you have a suggestion, for Pete's sake, don't hold out on us, Dave!"

"It may not be worth the breath to state it, Rodney. I was wondering if some of the men at the Rescue mission might not fit in. They're a rough lot, but there are about twenty of them who are devoted to me. If they came, I could keep them straight while they worked. I think, but where would they live? The villagers wouldn't take them in; I wouldn't ask it."

Gerard did a sum in lightning calculation. "They could live in the big cattle barn down by the pond. I'll have bunks built, wood stoves would heat it, and get a cook from New York to feed them. Whoops! I believe you've solved the problem! I'll pay any wages you say—providing, of course, my partner approves the plan."

Prudence shook her head. "The plan is all right, but you must make allowance for the fact that Dave believes that his boys like 'all God's chillen got wings' when they are exposed to the right spiritual conditions."

Her brother's fine eyes were alight with enthusiasm.

"You're wrong, Prue, they have more sporting spirit than you think. Most of them never have had a chance. Suppose we set three or four permanently on their feet and incidentally get the timber out. Wouldn't that be worth while? What say, Gerard?"

"I think it's keen. Give me a letter to the head of the Rescue mission and I will go to New York tomorrow."

"I'll go with you."

"David!"

"Don't spike our plan, Prue, with fear for me. I must be sure that the boys understand the proposition. Don't make an invalid of me. I'm through with that. I'm going."

"Of course, if that's the way you feel about it, Dave, who am I to stand in your way?"

"Glad you realize your unimportance, Prue." Her brother smiled at her.

"Shall we go tomorrow, Rodney?" His voice had the eagerness of a boy's about to fare forth on an adventure.

"Yes. Perhaps you'll come and see us off?" Gerard's eyes were on Prudence. Jean caught his arm.

"You couldn't take me, could you, Uncle Rod? This house will seem awful big without you." She swallowed hard.

"Let Jean come and stay with me."

"Oh, Uncle Rod, may I stay with Miss Prue while you're away? I'll be as good as gold."

"Do you really want her?" For the first time since she had entered the room Gerard felt that Prudence looked at him. "Just a moment, K. K. Do you really want her, Prue?"

"Of course I want her."

"Okay then, come over and see off your brother, Prue, then Jim will drive you and Jean back to the red brick house."

what may be fun to you may prove a knockout for him?"

Prudence twisted free and asked with suspicious sweetness:

"Suppose I am not flirting?"

"Dark, isn't it? Pitch-black roads must be a state of Maine specialty," Prudence commented, as she bent forward to look through the windshield against which an occasional big snowflake splashed and melted. "Tomorrow you will be whizzing to New York. Jean and I will hie us to the post office daily for letters."

"We'll keep you informed as to progress. I'm glad you asked Jean to stay with you. That girl is growing a soul."

"Curious that she has so little love for either of her parents. Usually a child adores one of them."

"Have you heard anything about her father which sounds lovable? As for her mother—she is the type of knowledge all females who fires me with a desire to hurl something at her, preferably something that will squash. Know the urge?"

"To a quiver. It's wonderful to hear you laugh again."

"It is a sound to which you will get accustomed from now on. When I opened my eyes this morning, it seemed as if I emerged from a smothering fog into light and life—full, vigorous, courageous life—with a renewed assurance of the indestructibility of the human soul. Through the corridors of my mind echoed the fragment of a verse I haven't thought of for years: "Lengthening roads that wind through dust and heat to hilltops clear." Hilltops clear! I awoke on one this morning. Here we are. Those lighted windows in the red brick look like brilliant eyes watching for us. Nice old house."

"Suppose I Am Not Flirting?"

"I love it. Always feel like patting it as I pass."

David Schuyler turned as he stepped from the car.

"It helps to hear you say that, Prue. You don't know how troubled I have been that for me you gave up your friends and work in the city to come into the country. If you had been discontented—"

Prudence laughed. "I discontented! Somebody once said, 'Tragedy is chic but discontent is dowdy.' Now, I ask you, can you think of me as being dowdy?"

"I can think of you only as being the best little sport on earth," her brother commented gruffly.

David wouldn't think her the best little sport on earth if he knew how tight and choky her throat was at the thought of his making the trip to the city. Suppose it were to undo all the good that life in the country had accomplished. Prudence asked herself the next morning, as before breakfast, she ran down the stairs. She stopped in amazement as Rodney Gerard, David, and Jane Mack stepped from her shop.

"What in the world—have you changed your plans?" she demanded, and drew a quick sigh of relief. "What has happened? You three look—"

"Can't Rodney come to tell me of something extra to pack, Prue, without turning your eyes into huge interrogation points?" David Schuyler demanded with assumed indignation.

"Of course, but—"

"I'll be seeing you, Dave. Prue, be sure that he wears his warmest coat. Keep me posted, Miss Mack." With the last request Rodney Gerard closed the front door behind him.

Prudence looked from her brother's amused eyes to Jane Mack's flushed face.

"What are you to keep him posted about, Macky?"

"Mr. Gerard knows that I'm kind of anxious about that prisoner who's on the loose, an' with no man in the house—"

"Forget it!" David Schuyler interrupted. "Look over my bag and see if I have everything I need, will you, Prue?"

Excitement over the trip was certainly doing David good, not harm. His eyes were brighter, his face less careworn. Prudence decided an hour later, as standing between Jim Armstrong and Jean she watched Rodney Gerard's plane take off from the landing field which had a double runway, east-west, north-south.

Jean slipped an arm in Prue's and one in Armstrong's as they crossed the field which bordered a pond. Prudence commented upon the lure of ponds in general and this one in particular.

"What a place to skate!" she exclaimed in conclusion.

"It's a bear!" Jean agreed. "Perhaps Uncle Rod will have a skating party for us. Ask him, will you, Miss Prue?"

"We'll wait until the timber is cut before we ask for parties. You understand, K. K., don't you, that the object of your uncle's trip to New York is to be kept a deep, dark secret?"

Jean scowled. "Do you think I'd tell? I'm not dumb if I'm not pretty. I—well, for crying out loud!"

They had approached the front door of High Ledges. Prue's eyes followed Jean's as the girl stopped short to stare at the man at the top of the steps.

He was of medium height and slimly built. He might be forty-five, though he looked thirty-five. His sleek black hair was gray at the temples; his eyebrows were not much heavier than his clipped dark mustache; high cheek bones added to the impression of enormous eyes. His lips were full and red. Jean sniffed.

"Wouldn't you know it! Wouldn't you know he'd appear just as I was getting ready to have some fun?" She looked at Prudence through tear-filled eyes. "In case you don't know, that's my father."

Walter Gerard urbanely introduced himself. Prue noted the puffiness under his eyes, the unsteadiness of his hands. She recognized his type. She had had one like him in the family.

Sandow, the Strong Man, Was Weakling, When Boy

The world's most famous strong man was Eugen Sandow, who, while he lived, was the strongest man on earth, says a writer in the Kansas City Times. He died in 1925. Sandow did not always have an extraordinary physique. Born in Königsberg, Prussia, in 1867, he was in his youth a weakling, and his family many times despaired of his reaching manhood. His father, a jeweler, believed that would improve the boy's health, and the two visited a number of foreign countries, among them Italy, where Eugen, then sixteen, became interested in the statues of Greek and Roman demigods. If they had had such wonderful bodies, Sandow reasoned, why couldn't persons of the present age? He believed physical training was the answer, and he immediately began a course of such development, using dumbbells and weights. He studied anatomy, and within a few years he was rewarded by the growth of his muscles. No longer a weakling, he gave private exhibitions to his friends, who marveled at the change.

Sandow was 5 feet 8½ inches tall and weighed never less than 196, nor more than 200 pounds. His chest, normal, was 52 inches; expanded it was 61 inches; his biceps measured, flexed, 19½ inches; calf, 18½; ankles and wrists were relatively small, fingers well shaped and well cared for.

Bakeries Rank Ninth Among Canada's Trades; Are Paid $15,000,000 in Wages

The days when every thrifty housewife baked her own bread have gone into history. In the early settlement of Canada home bread making was almost universal, but now, there are comparatively few localities which are not served by the commercial bakery.

A return issued by the Canadian government bureau of statistics indicates the commercial importance of the bread making and allied industries. Statistics were gathered from more than 2,800 firms, not including hotels, restaurants and public institutions which bake their own bread. The industry is found to rank ninth in value of products made and fifth in the amount of salaries and wages paid; the capital invested amounts to nearly $50,000,000, and over $15,000,000 is paid in wages and salaries.

The consumption of material, most of which is produced in Canada, amounts to $23,431,275. The products are classified as: Bread, valued at $40,110,843; pies, cakes, cookies and pastry, $9,978,733, and buns, $2,463,042. To produce these quantities of food required more than 1,000,000 pounds of butter, nearly 5,000,000 dozen eggs, over 3,000,000 barrels of flour, over 8,000,000 pounds of fruit and about the same quantity of lard, and 25,000,000 pounds of sugar.

COLORED ROADS

Colored roads are the subject of the newest experiments in Italy for the further improvement of motor traffic movement. The roads of Italy are ideal for motoring save for their shiny surfaces, which are equally annoying under the brilliant sunshine of Italian daytime or nocturnal headlights. Coloring, it is suggested, would remove the brightness of the road surface and different colors could be used for different localities, so that every motorist would know the road to take to get to a particular place. The coloring matter is to be mixed with the surface dressing of the road and nonfading tints are being sought.

THE STORY OF JENNIE

1—Jennie's folks were musical.
2—Her father came of a long line of bass drummers.
3—Her mother played the brass horn.
4—They decided to give Jennie a musical education whether she liked it or not.
5—They chose to make her a harpist, Jennie being too young to resist.
6—Jennie's first major recollection was seeing a harp for the first time and thinking it was the front of an animal cage.
7—She developed a fear complex through spending her entire childhood fearing that the harp would fall on her.

8—But her parents never let up and Jennie became the child wonder of the community.
9—Everywhere that Jennie went her harp was sure to go.
10—That was the tough part of it.
11—But it meant that Jennie never got into any informal, jazzy parties.
12—One day Jennie disappeared from home, leaving her harp behind.
13—Nothing was heard of her for some years.
14—Then it was found she had eloped with a young man who had been an assistant keeper in the hippopotamus house at the zoo.

15—They had lots in common.
16—When located, Jennie had become a harmonica devotee. Her husband made a living carving ornaments out of acorns. They put in the long winter evenings together writing the Declaration of Independence on the head of a pin.
17—They had one son, Emil, a dwarf, who became a student of the atom.
MORAL—Let the kids develop their own way.

Soon Will Be Able to Forecast Insect Visits

While entomologists have been informing interested persons these many years of the threatened abundance of destructive insect pests as the occasion required, along with degree of intensity and width of distribution, the announcement that the Illinois State Natural History survey has developed "insect forecasting" in a serious way is not without interest and value. For the survey is not only perfecting its forecasting abilities through long and increasing familiarity with insects and their habits, but it is enlarging its knowledge of control methods and it is receiving heartier co-operations in control from farmers and fruit growers. So there is higher purpose in "insect forecasting" that deals with the rise and fall of destructive pests.

Last year an outbreak of chinch bugs in Illinois exceeded anything of this nature in the last sixty-five years. As something was known in advance of its probable intensity and of its geographical distribution, the information brought Illinois farmers to arms and the state and individuals co-operated in the installation of something like 2,000 miles of barriers and the use of insecticides to hold and destroy the insects. In that way many thousands of bushels of corn were saved from destruction. Without the advance knowledge and the "insect forecasts" that were issued as a result of the knowledge the damage would have been much greater and over a greater territory.

Now the Natural History survey forecasts a recurrence of the scourge, unless weather conditions radically alter earlier prospects. So a forecast again arms the farmers and others who wage war on destructive pests, and the survey is ready to lead the fray employing the best of last year's control methods and urging use of seed corn types known to be resistant.

"Insect forecasting," however, is in no way confined to the chinch bug and his damaging course. There are dozens and even hundreds of other crop and fruit hazards in insect life, all of them known to and their life cycles charted by entomologists everywhere, who have advance knowledge of their coming and often a very accurate knowledge of the prospective intensity of their visits. Certain tribes come by rote and on scheduled visits; others come in intensity and on occasions known to specialists in their lore; certain weather conditions may hasten or delay, may stimulate numbers or may decrease the hordes. So the forecasts of the entomologists are useful and their direction of the fight in control is invaluable.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"Calf Love" No Laughing Matter

Harold P. Page, director of Y. M. C. A. boys' work, has proved himself a sage. In an article appearing in the 'The Parents' Magazine' he warns mothers and fathers that they

FEEL TIRED, ACHY—
"ALL WORN OUT?"

Get Rid of Poisons That Make You Ill

IS a constant backache keeping you miserable? Do you suffer burning, scanty or too frequent urination; attacks of dizziness, rheumatic pains, swollen feet and ankles? Do you feel tired, nervous—all unstrung?

Then give some thought to your kidneys. Be sure they function properly, for functional kidney disorder permits poisons to stay in the blood and upset the whole system.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They help the kidneys cleanse the blood of health-destroying poisonous waste. Doan's Pills are used and recommended the world over. Get them from any druggist.

need not hope to escape contact with "Calf Love." They may deplore it, they may ignore it, they may try to laugh it off, but just so long as boys will be boys and there are girls in the offing, just so long there will continue to take place this phenomena of adolescent life to which the scornfully good-humored term is applied. In the opinion of this close observer of youth in his charge, this form of love is a beautiful, often wondrously moving drama, when put on by two clean-minded normal young people.

"Acknowledge its presence within the family circle," pleads Mr. Page, "greet it with dignity, with assurance, with sympathetic understanding."

"The boy and girl in love are in the grip of a cyclonic force. If you are wise you will make no attempt to play the superman or superwoman at this time," warns the director and astutely sets forth several common methods of parental attack which he believes are certain to miss fire.

"To deny the existence of 'calf love' by donning a mask of cold reserve smacks of cowardice," he flatly declares. "It only successfully erects a false barrier between parent and child that the latter will silently resent and as silently question its presence."

"Any challenge to reason is futile, because reason plays an insignificant part in 'calf love,' if indeed it is present at all. Pure feeling has taken its place.

"Ridicule is a cruel way of meeting the situation. It inflicts wounds which hardly, if ever heal, and may result in an utterly false appraisal by the young person of the intrinsic beauty of his love that may forever mar his relations with members of the other sex."

"A furtive approach will madden the young lover who considers a natural and intimate matter the object of a hidden attack."

"Force is futile and fatal during the flowering of a fragile emotion."

With keen comprehension of the peculiar need of youth during this period when a comparatively simple existence has suddenly been infinitely complicated, Mr. Page urges the substitution of tenderness for parental authority, and urges fathers and mothers to remember their own adolescence and the physiological causes and changes involved.

"Be frank with your boys and girls. Help them to grow up emotionally. Put a good book on sex into their hands. Above all, open your homes for good times and entertainments and see that the two young persons involved are together—for together they'll be—under your roof."

Sane advice, if you ask us. Mr. Page speaks with the knowledge gained by years of contact with other parents and sons as well as with the wisdom born of intimacy with two boys of his own with whom he must some day squarely face the problems of "calf love."

Longevity Secret Now Held to Be Moderation

Ten thousand Japanese more than eighty years old recently told how they live, and their stories agree with the general direction surveyed for the several, still dimly understood, scientific roads to longevity.

These roads are diet, heredity, rest and mental poise. All seem to be converging toward the common goal of moderation.

On the diet there are two recent significant surveys indicating how man may soon learn to prolong his life. The latest, by Dr. C. M. McCay, of the Cornell university animal nutrition laboratory, challenged the present practice of feeding both animals and children enough to produce maximum size in the shortest time.

In his colony of rats Doctor McCay has some already twice normal rat ages, and still going, with the oldest equal to 110 years of human life.

The lives of these animals were doubled by just one thing—feeding them less than enough to let them grow as fast as nature would permit.

The other survey shows diet applied in a manner more nearly fitting humans' desires. This was made by Dr. Henry C. Sherman, of Columbia university, whose experiments led him to predict that the average life span can be prolonged ten years in the near future by choice of diet.

No nation yet has ventured to apply the known laws of heredity that result in longer life. But the Japanese study suggests this type of heredity is somehow mingled with moderation; that those who inherit their longevity come from families neither very small nor extra large, according to the Associated Press.

This study was made by Doctor Nakayama, a school hygienist. To him the 10,000 reported on climate, circumstances and manner of living, hygiene, tastes and family records.

Living in cities, a tabulation of the 10,000 reports shows, decreases the life span. Aged women are more numerous than aged men. Seaside villages were the most numerous among the habitats of the long-lived Japanese. All villages exceeded all towns for long-lived inhabitants and the towns were ahead of the cities.

The majority of those who reported were agricultural workers. Most were of medium build, but some were corpulent and a few slender. They now go to bed early and rise late. They generally have led quiet lives.

MARVELOUS DWARF TREES

Only the Japanese cultivate the unique art of growing dwarfed trees in pots for room decoration. Sometimes these little trees, even after hundreds of years, are less than two feet in height, yet their proportions of stem, branch, and leaf are preserved with fidelity. Pots containing groups of six or eight fine ones, suggesting a forest, have frequently been sold for thousands of dollars.—Exchange.

Why Children Need a Liquid Laxative

The temporary relief children get from unwise dosing with harsh cathartics may cause bowel strain, and even set-up irritation in the kidneys. A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a more natural movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to give the child "a double dose" a day or two later.

Can constipation be safely relieved in children? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say many mothers who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Give the dose you find suited to the system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose, if repeated, until the bowels are moving naturally without aid.

An approved liquid laxative (one that is widely used for children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The mild laxative action of this excellent preparation is the best form of help for children—and grown-ups, too. The dose can be regulated for any age or need.

Rev. Myron Insko, formerly pastor of the M. E. church, who has since its inception been the superintendent of the San Diego County Goodwill Industries, points out, in his regular monthly report to his directors the remarkable progress of the organization since its removal to its new quarters in January this year.

Two new records were broken last month, that for the number of workers employed and the amount expended in wages. Of the 124 different persons working for the Goodwill Industries in October, an average of 36 were employed daily, the previous high mark being 31 in the previous month. The amount paid them in wages was 82% in excess of the amount similarly expended a year ago.

The receipts from store sales showed an increase of 79% as compared with October 1933. The number of customers during the month was 3900. The money received from them permitted the payment of the wages and other essential expenses. There are no expenses excepting wages and the essential overhead requirements, such as rent, insurance and truck upkeep.

Mr. Insko points out the numbers reached by the morning chapel exercises, often addressed by guest-speakers from Ocean Beach. The total thus reached during the month exceeded one thousand, being about forty daily.
